George Morgan - ...

Praxis Group A

Clement, who created it with an individual style like no film before. The film is based on the Greek mythological story of the child of Zeus, Hercules (voiced by Tate Donovan).

The mighty and impossibly strong Hercules was abandoned by his godly parents after the evil Hades sent his minions to make him drink a potion that would turn him mortal, leaving him to live with his new farmer parents, causing him feel different from the other kids because of his strength - this introduced the main theme of the story, that being different is okay. The film is well animated with the introduction of CGI animation for a scene where Hercules is battling the horrible multi-headed Hydra. The plot was much different to the traditional Greek myth (although, admittedly, the myth itself has multiple variations) where Zeus' wife Hera sends snakes to kill Hercules instead of Hades, which could lead to children knowing the false myth of Hercules.

There are a number of enjoyable side characters in the film, Phil, Hercules'
